DISCOVER INDIA'S INCREDIBLE WILDLIFE

India offers wildlife adventures as diverse as the country itself. From the tiger-rich forests of Central India to the lion country of Gujarat, the rhino grasslands of Assam, and the lush elephant habitats of the south, each region offers a unique encounter with nature. The famous tiger reserves of Central India provide some of the best opportunities to see the majestic Bengal tiger in its natural habitat, while visitors may also encounter leopards, sloth bears, wild dogs, gaur, deer, and hundreds of colourful bird species.

India's wildlife extends far beyond its tiger reserves. In the west, Gir National Park is the only place on Earth where Asiatic lions roam free, while Kaziranga National Park is renowned for its population of one-horned rhinoceroses and the wetlands of Bharatpur attract migratory birds from across the globe. Elephants wander through the forests of the south, snow leopards inhabit the high mountains of Ladakh, dolphins swim in the Ganges River, and marine life thrives along India's coastline, where sea turtles, whales, and dolphins can be spotted during the right season.

Just a few of the journeys you can take... (NP = National Park)
